CITY NOTES.

Select council will meet tomorrow night instead of this evening.
The Young Men's Christian association gymnasium will be open today as usual.
Mrs. W. B. Dugan, of the Associated Charities, is daily besieged with applications for relief.

All of the offices in the municipal building and court house will be closed today on account of Thanksgiving.
Do not forget to attend the free exhibitions given by The Tribune, corner Penn and Spruce street, on Saturday evening, Dec. 1, at 8 o'clock.

There will be an important meeting of the Oliver Wendell Holmes Literary society next Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. All members are requested to be present.
The funeral services of the late William Fier will take place today at the house, 38 North Sumner street, at 2 p. m. and at the Simpson Methodist Episcopal church at 2:30 p. m.

The enterprising dancing class will give one of its enjoyable socials at Excelsior hall, on Wyoming avenue, tonight. The dancing will be in charge of Professor George Taylor, the instructor of the class, and the music will be first-class.

The Oxford Mine Accidental fund applied to the court yesterday for a charter. The subscribers to the articles of incorporation are Martin F. Sheridan, John E. Jenkins, Reese S. Phillips, Edward Donnelly and John Thomas, all of this city.
Excursion tickets at greatly reduced rates will be sold by the Delaware and Hudson company to persons wishing to attend the Christian Endeavor convention at Carbondale tomorrow. Tickets will be good on all regular trains during the day.

The regular meeting of the Railroad Young Men's Christian association auxiliary has been postponed until Friday afternoon, Dec. 7, at 2 o'clock sharp. All members are requested to be present, as business of importance will be transacted. By order of the president.

Miss Annie McGoff, of Bellevue, was married to Thomas Mulhern, of Providence, by Rev. J. A. O'Reilly, at 3:15 last evening in St. Peter's cathedral. Miss McGoff was attended by Miss Margaret Gaghan and Mr. Mulhern by Anthony Lynch. A reception was held last night at the home of the bride.

A chicken and waffle supper will be served by the Woman's auxiliary of Calvary Reformed church, corner Monroe avenue and Gibson street, this evening. The proceeds of this supper will be devoted to the building fund of the new church, which is now in course of erection. Tickets for the supper are 25 cents.

John Walter and Edward Walter, doing business on Lackawanna avenue at the Walter Printing company, yesterday made an assignment to John H. Holt for the benefit of the creditors of the firm. Court appointed Mr. Flory best Adm'r. E. Vorhis to appraise the value of the stock and effects of the printing company.

George Van Horn, who was arrested on Tuesday night for attempting to enter a house on Linden street next to the Florence Rescue mission, was yesterday released on payment of a $3 fine. Frank Hatcher, the comedian, who was arrested for entering an express car on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, was discharged.

The Thanksgiving reception to be given this evening by the Young People's assembly at Professor Siegel's conservatory of dancing will inaugurate the first of their winter socials of dances and will be of unusual interest. Many of the prominent young folks of Wilkesbarre, Pittston and Carbondale will be in attendance. The music will be a special feature.

For the Joseph Jefferson engagement at the Frothingham today doors will not open for the matinee performance until 2:15. The performance will begin at 2:30, thus affording ample time to reach the theater after the Thanksgiving dinner. At the evening performance the gallery will be in first-class condition for ladies.

and gentlemen who desire to occupy the front seats in that part of the house.
Dr. Walk's lecture tomorrow night at the Young Men's Christian association concert hall promises to be of unusual interest, as every effort has been made by the committee of the Board of Associated Charities to ensure a thorough success. Vocal and instrumental music will be rendered and Dr. Walk's lecture must prove a great attraction in itself.
A meeting of the joint fire department committee of council was called for yesterday afternoon in the city clerk's office. The members decided to go to the North End and look over certain pieces of land to purchase on which to erect a building for the Cumberland Hose company. When the gentlemen of the committee got as far as Court street a fire was in progress on Lloyd street, and they did not go any farther.

Marriage licenses were granted by the clerk of the courts yesterday to Frank A. Chiel and Ethelida Flannigan, Scranton; Charles Goodinger and Annie McAndrew, Scranton; John Malone and Esther Wilkinson, Priceville; James E. Keenan and Alice T. DEATH SUDDEN AND QUICK

Three Men Killed by a Fall of Rock in Pine Brook Shaft.

SLAB WEIGHED FIFTEEN TONS

John B. Jones, Thomas J. Cawley and Edward Egan Meet a Sudden Death. The Latter Lived a Half Hour After Being Brought Out.

Suddenly and swiftly three men were crushed to death by a fall of rock in the Pine Brook shaft of the Lackawanna Iron and Steel company at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Their names are:

JOHN B. JONES, aged 45 years, miner, married, but without any children, and living at 52 Harrison avenue.
THOMAS J. CAWLEY, aged 29 years, laborer, unmarried, and boarding at 415 Luzerne street.
EDWARD EGAN, aged 45 years, laborer, unmarried, and boarding at 446 Phelps street.

Jones and Cawley were instantly killed, but Egan lived for a half hour until he was removed to the engine room, and was about to be placed in the Moses Taylor ambulance when he breathed his last. All three were terribly crushed, their bodies were twisted out of shape by the weight of the heavy "saddle" or "bell" of rock that dropped on them.

Apparently it was an unavoidable accident, ranking in the list of disastrous mining casualties that every now and then happen in the best regulated mine.

Where the men met their death was at the face of Jones' chamber in the Dunmore vein on No. 2 lift, and it lies underneath Capouse avenue, about midway between Ash and Poplar streets. The vein of coal runs on an average five feet and about eighteen inches of bottom rock is blasted to make a proper height for the mules. Cawley labored with Jones and Egan labored with Michael Mulligan in the adjoining chamber.

They Were Seated Smoking.

Jones and Cawley had cleaned up the face of their chamber and were getting it ready to allow the rockmen to lift about ten feet of bottom rock. They were sitting close to the face of the chamber taking a rest and enjoying a smoke. Egan came over from his work and joined them. He had not been more than two minutes seated with them when the fall came that ended their lives. Mulligan, in the next chamber, heard the crash and ran out, but received no answer. When he went through the cross-cut to see if there was anything wrong he saw no light at the face of the chamber, and upon investigating he found the three men covered beneath the slab. Egan was alive and muttering faintly. Help was quickly at hand and the rock was lifted from him and he was hurriedly taken to the surface. In the meantime the Moses Taylor ambulance was summoned, but Egan's life had closed before the doors were shut, just as they had lifted him on the mattress.

A half hour was spent in releasing the bodies of the other men and after that was done they were placed in a car and brought to the foot of the shaft, a few minutes later being hoisted to the engine room, where they were placed in ambulances and brought home.

What Foreman Powell Says.

A Tribune reporter had a talk with John H. Powell, incident foreman of the shaft, and his version of the case is that it was an unavoidable accident, an unfortunate occurrence that is deeply regretted by him. The crash and score at work all day; they had gone on at 10 o'clock in the morning, and had finished their shift and were soon to get ready for home.

Foreman Powell believes that they had not fired a blast for a good while before, as the place was clear of coal. They were sitting at the face of the breast with their backs to the pillar just as miners are often in the habit of doing, taking a short rest and enjoying a smoke. Egan came over and entered into conversation with them. Without the warning of an instant they were crushed beneath the slab weighing upward of fifteen tons. It was about 3 feet wide, 16 feet in length and in the center at its thickest point was not more than 9 inches solid. It was what is commonly called in the phraseology of the mines, a "saddle."

Those who are conversant with the working of coal know that after the coal has been mined from a chamber for often times a year afterward the roof will appear solid and no sign of danger is observed. Some morning when a visit is made to the chamber the roof may be found covered with one or a number, perhaps, of those saddles or bells.

They Have No Support.

They are simply stuck up in the roof without any support and are liable at any time to fall without the least warning. All of the men that were killed were practical employees and had worked at the Pine Brook shaft for years. Jones was engaged there since he was a little boy and was one of the most experienced miners in the shaft. Cawley and Egan had been employed there for the past ten years.

Foreman Powell notified Mine Inspector Blewitt who has charge over the district and the latter may perhaps make an investigation today. No coroner's jury was empaneled, the law providing that the mine inspector must first investigate and if he sees fit to order the coroner to empanel a jury he may do so.

The mines suspended operations as soon as the accident was reported to Foreman Powell.

HORSE WOULD NOT RUN.

Race Scene in Drama Kentucky Spoiled by Horse's Obstinance.

"Kentucky," a racing drama in four acts, was given at the Frothingham last evening in a tame and spiritless way. The third act in the scene of the Lexington race track, but the horse that was to run to victory and save the hero and his money, insisted on turning round on the stage instead of going straight ahead, and it required the hardest kind of work to pull the horse up a winner.

It was done, however, and the hero and the drama saved. The cast was poor and the play will not stand dissection. The race, of course, was spoiled by the obstinance of the horse.

DIPHTHERIA INCREASING.

Otherwise, the City's General Health Is About Normal.

The report of the board of health for last week shows an increase in the number of deaths from contagious or infectious diseases and a decrease in deaths from ordinary causes. There were 4 new cases and 1 death from typhoid fever, 5 new cases and 1 death from scarlet fever, 6 new cases and 1 death from diphtheria, 1 death from measles and 4 from consumption; a total of 15 new cases and 8 deaths; 25 deaths resulted from all causes.

The report sets at rest whatever rumors may have prevailed as to the extent of typhoid. Four new cases per week, health officials say, is not at all normal for this period of the year. The most notable increase is in the diphtheria cases. Of ordinary disease and deaths the number is below the usual figures.

WHERE DID THE MONEY GO?

Benevolent Society Had to Pay a Death Claim Twice.

Mrs. Emma J. Gilbert brought a suit before Alderman Post yesterday against John Gray, Henry Danhurst, and others, officers of the Roaring Brook castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, for payment of a benefit arising from her husband's death, who was a member of the society. The claim amounted to $45 and it was contended by the society that the money had been paid to a duly authorized officer, who, however, had failed to transfer the same to Mrs. Gilbert.

Alderman Post ruled that the society was responsible for the actions of their officers and gave judgment for the amount claimed.

IS PATRICK A. DEAN INSANE?

His Brother Had Him Committed to the Insane Department of the Hillside Home.

Writ of Habeas Corpus Secured.

An application was made to the court last evening by Attorney D. W. Brown for a writ of habeas corpus to secure the release of Patrick A. Dean from the insane department of the Hillside Home, to which institution he was committed Tuesday.

The affidavit which the writ was issued was sworn to by Attorney C. S. Woodruff. The writ was made returnable Friday morning. Mr. Woodruff, in speaking of the case last night, said:

"I know Mr. Dean very well and he is not a whit more insane than I am. Two days ago I was talking to him and he was perfectly rational. He is a single man and works in the mines, but is of a mechanical turn of mind and has invented a switch that he has applied for a patent on and which, I am told, is a valuable invention."

"Mr. Dean owns a little property on Thompson street, Providence, that he has been trying to sell recently, which may account for the steps taken to have him confined. It was his brother who secured his commitment to the insane asylum. We propose to have Mr. Dean brought before the court on these habeas corpus proceedings and if he is insane, which I most certainly doubt, we will at least have the matter authoritatively settled."

A FINE ENTERTAINMENT.

Given Last Night by the Pupils of Wood's Business College.

The largest audience that ever assembled at Wood's college came last evening to listen to the Thanksgiving entertainment. The entertainers were artists of splendid ability and displayed a degree of excellence seldom equaled.

The Misses Grady, of Providence, gave a duet in a most charming manner. Miss Florence Ham, of Honesdale, a matinee reader, with a rich, well modulated voice and a grace of delivery that wins the admiration of her auditors. Edward Kilten was accompanied by Miss Messett. Mr. Kelly is a great favorite with the boys, and his singing is very attractive.

W. F. Shean is a veritable Demosthenes. He acquitted himself with great credit. Miss Bernice Conger recited and received a hearty encore.

Miss Stacie Black sang with great success. She took the entire audience by storm with her beautiful voice and magnificent execution. One of the daintiest treats, after all, must be credited to Miss Grady. Her fine soprano voice has the same merit of freshness and brilliancy. Professor Horace Ecken accompanied Miss Black and Miss Grady. Emerson Owen recited and his popularity with the boys brought a hearty recall.

The students from a distance will spend the remainder of the week at their homes enjoying the Thanksgiving vacation.

THE DIXON COMPANY.

Gave a Most Satisfactory Performance at Reading.

The following telegram was received at the Academy of Music last night: Reading, Pa., Nov. 28. Dixon company of twenty give clean performance, everything new, best variety entertainment given in Reading in many years. John D. Misher.

Well Merited Success.

The phenomenal success of Lewis, Rely & Davies, the Wyoming avenue dealers, is well merited. They always aim to give their customers only the very best goods the market produces; their prices are reasonable in the extreme, and with a large corps of competent and obliging clerks, the customers are promptly and satisfactorily taken care of.

Just now the firm is displaying its complete winter stock of ladies', gents', and children's shoes, and rare bargains are offered. They invite all to make them a visit, and guarantee that they sell to be just as recommended or money refunded. Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, Nov. 29, their store will be closed in order to give their clerks an opportunity to give thanks, but on Friday they will open for business with renewed vigor.

BIG FIRE ON LLOYD STREET

Three Families Rendered Homeless by Burning of a Large Building.

WATER WAS NOT AVAILABLE

Hose Was Too Short and Fire Hydrants Too Far Away—Before Assistance Arrived the House Was in Ruins.

Loss About $4,000.

Great excitement was caused yesterday afternoon by a second alarm of fire which was sounded from box 72. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon it was discovered that the residence of Mrs. S. D. Lee, on Lloyd street, was on fire and an alarm was promptly sent from the nearest box which was responded to by the Liberty and Niagara Hose companies, who, however, could not combat successfully with the flames as the house was at a considerable distance from a fire hydrant.

A second alarm was sounded some time after which the fire of the General Phinney Engine company and Cumberland Hose company to the scene, and with the additional hose, the fire was promptly extinguished, but too late to save the building. The two first companies to arrive were each short of about fifty feet of hose, and had this been provided the house, which was a double frame structure, would in all probability have been saved.

Mrs. Lee had a number of boarders and three other families resided in the house. The fire is supposed to have originated in the roof near a chimney, and was discovered by some neighbors who willingly exerted themselves in removing the furniture. The effects on the first floor were removed in time. The total loss will be over $4,000 and is being partly covered by insurance. The burned-out families were last night accommodated in the neighbors houses.

Filling the Jury Wheel.

Next Friday the jury wheel will be filled for the year 1895 by the jury commissioners and Judge Archbold. Each of the three will select the names of 50 men, making a total of 1,500 altogether. On Saturday the jury commissioners and Sheriff Fahey will draw from the wheel the grand jury and petit juries for the January term of court.

Charge Against Constable Miller.

Constable J. S. Miller, of the Ninth ward, was yesterday arraigned before Alderman Fitzsimmons upon a charge of failing to pay over money collected by him on an execution. The amount involved was $41 and was due to J. S. Brock. Alderman Fitzsimmons held Miller in bail to appear at court.

Healing Without Medicine.

Some of the strangest and most marvelous cures of crippled, deaf and sick people is being done in public at Music hall every afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Yesterday afternoon one man, who had been deaf for over twenty years, was cured so that he could easily hear the ticking of a watch. Another, an old man, who came there on crutches, all crippled up from paralytic rheumatism, after treatment he threw his crutches away and walked home without them. Such cures do indeed seem miraculous, but cures even more remarkable than these may be seen almost any day by going to the hall. The lectures and healing commences at 2:30 o'clock. Admission to the hall is free.
